All I ever needed to know I learned from grepping /usr/src/linux/

/* Watch for overflows Seeks are not allowed on pipes. Need to clean after the sucker Clear the capabilities if we switch to a non-root user this should never be reached, but safety first... source must exist Gcc optimizes away "strlen(x)" for constant x If device is running, close it first. This is "wrong" - talk to Al Viro Rock ridge never appears on a High Sierra disk Found nothing?!?! Either we hang forever, or we panic. Finalize the task. Ensure we've flushed out any previous writes check that the match is indeed a match Never send packets back to the socket OK, This is the point of no return */
